

Exercise 31

Explain the difference between extensive properties and intensive properties.

Solution

An extensive property is a property that depends on the amount of substance there is. Mass and volume are two extensive properties.

An intensive property is a property that does not depend on the amount of substance there is. Temperature and density are two intensive properties.