

Exercise 5

Why does the horizontal line test tell us whether the graph of a function is one-to-one?

Solution

If a function passes the horizontal line test, then every possible input is associated with a unique output. This is what one-to-one means.