Exercise 1

Why does the domain differ for different functions?

Solution

Different functions behave differently from one another, and a number you can put into one function may not be acceptable for another function.