Exercise 2

How can you tell whether an absolute value function has two x-intercepts without graphing the function?

Solution

Set the function equal to zero and solve the equation for the term with the absolute value sign. If it's equal to a positive number, then there are two x-intercepts.