

Exercise 1

Describe why the horizontal line test is an effective way to determine whether a function is one-to-one?

Solution

A function that is one-to-one has a unique output for every input; in other words, a one-to-one function will never have two y -values that are the same. By drawing horizontal lines, you can check whether this is true or not for a given function.