Exercise 5

Explain how to interpret the absolute value of a correlation coefficient.

---

Solution

A correlation coefficient is the defining characteristic of a linear regression line, which is used to summarize and model a data set. The closer the absolute value of the correlation coefficient is to 1, the more the data set is better represented by a straight line.